Louise Steinman Ansberry

Louise Steinman Ansberry, 85, of Lancaster, passed away on Thursday, March 13, 2008, at her home in School Lane Hills. Known to many as Tinnie, she was the eldest daughter of James Hale and Louise Tinsley Steinman.

Mrs. Ansberry was born in Baltimore, MD in 1922 and attended the Shippen School in Lancaster before matriculating at the Greenwood School in Ruxton, Maryland, from which she graduated in 1940. She also attended Finch Junior College and the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School in New York.

After leaving school, Mrs. Ansberry took a job as a secretary at CBS in New York, but left shortly thereafter for Washington, D.C., where she developed a life-long interest in politics. She served on Capitol Hill, working for Reps. George Rhodes (D-Pa.), Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), and Sen. James Duff (R-Pa.). She also served on the finance committees for Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon, and of Robert Kennedy's senatorial campaign. From 1947 until 1971 she was Washington correspondent for the Lancaster Sunday News.

While living in Washington, she was a legend on the scene at which Washington's political and social worlds intersected. In a front page Style Section article in the Washington Post on February 17, 1975, she explained that she always tried to ask people to dinner who had opposing viewpoints. That often led to interesting conversations and, occasionally, skirmishes, like the celebrated confrontation between columnist Drew Pearson and Sen. Joe McCarthy (R-Wisc.) at a Sulfgrave Club dinner she hosted. Sen. McCarthy called Pearson "an unprincipled liar" and "a Moscow-directed character assassin" before she diffused the situation by telling the Senator, "You are such an old fool, Joe."

Mrs. Ansberry worked in met Prime Minister Nehru, who pumped her for information on an old acquaintance of hers, John F. Kennedy. She told him that Kennedy was sincere and provided insights into his life in Massachusetts, before he became a household name.

She later established Louise Ansberry Associates and, subsequently, Svarga Associates, and provided consulting services to the Japan Trade Center, Pertamina (the Indonesian oil company), and the governments of Indonesia and India in the areas of tourism, economics and politics.

In recognition of her work to nurture the relationship between the United States and Indonesia in the arenas of economic development and tourism, the Indonesia government, in 1991, presented Mrs. Ansberry with the ADIKARYA Award for Tourism. The award is given annually to a person who has made noteworthy contributions to the country in the field of tourism. In addition, the Ministry of Tourism named Mrs. Ansberry as the recipient of a special award recognizing her successful efforts to develop tourism in Indonesia.

Mrs. Ansberry's interest in Indonesian culture and music culminated in her acquisition of a Royal Court Gamelan from Solo, Central Java. In 1983 she donated the gamelan, a full 50-piece orchestra, to Wesleyan University, where it has assumed an integral role in Wesleyan's Ethnomusicology Program.

From the mid 1970s through 1981, Mrs. Ansberry spent parts of each year at her residences in Tugu, West Java, Indonesia, Ubud, Bali, Indonesia, New York City, Washington, DC and Berkeley, CA.

Mrs. Ansberry's marriages to T. Peter Ansberry and Subur Rahardja ended in divorce.

Mrs. Ansberry is survived by: daughters Louise (Diane) Ansberry Rahardja, wife of Andyan Rahardja of Dallas, TX, and Hale Ansberry Krasne, wife of Robert Krasne of Washington, DC and Lancaster, PA; grandchildren James Hale Rahardja, Andrea Steinman Rahardja, William Joseph KJrasne, and Margaret Duncan Krasne, and two sisters, Caroline Steinman Nunan and Beverly R. The Best...
God saw you getting tired, and a cure was not to be. So he put His arms around you, and whispered "Come to Me". With tearful eyes we watched you, and saw you pass away. Although we loved you dearly, we could not make you stay. A golden heart stopped beating, hard working hands at rest. God broke our hearts to prove to us, He only takes the best.
