Plaza Boulevard

By PAUL FRANZ

Eleven mallard ducklings escaped death Saturday afternoon when they were rescued from inside a storm drain in front of the Babies 'R' Us on Plaza Boulevard in Manheim Township.

They were saved by a staff member from the Organization for Responsible Care of Animals after a caller phoned in about the stranded ducklings at around 4 p.m. Saturday.

"It happens all the time during this time of year," ORCA wildlife specialist Sandra Mays was likely the ducklings were making their way to a small creek behind the toy store when they fell into the drain.

She said that this was the fourth time ducklings had to be rescued from a storm drain last week. Tuesday, ORCA staff rescued 30 stranded ducklings in three separate incidents.

The Saturday rescue went off without a hitch. The 11 ducklings were reunited with their mother and sent back into the wild.

"This was a pretty decent situation because it was in a parking lot," Mays said. "A lot of times it's in the street, and you have to worry about your own safety and the mother's."

ORCA is an animal welfare group based in Lancaster. ■
