Aug. 6, 1953 - Jan. 27, 2007

No farewell words
were spoken,
No time to say goodbye,
You were gone before
I knew it.
My heart still
aches with sadness
And secret tears still flow
What it meant to love you
No one can ever know.
Let there be memories
Signs that our loved ones
Remain near in spirit
Long after they're gone.
Tender surprising, heartwarming
And welcome - a sweet peaceful Promise that love will live on.

people's mindsets," McGowan said. "Especially in a farming community."

"I think there's a tradition in Lancaster County of thinking of animals as agricultural products," said Mary Margaret Kelly, a professor of psychology at Millersville University, and, like McGowan, a member of the League of Humane Voters.

"It's almost crop-like, the way some people think of dogs," she said. "Those who have companion dogs realize what warm, nurturing creatures they are. On the other end of the continuum are the people who find them to be an extraordinarily profitable business. Chaining dogs outside all the time requires the same attitude of insensitivity that results in puppy mills."

The Central Pennsylvania League of Humane Voters was formed in 2005, an offshoot of the decade-old National LHV. In an area that Fourteen states have proposed anti-tethering bills. Three — California, Texas and Maryland — have passed laws limiting the chaining of dogs.

"We don't want to alienate people, we want to help," said McGowan, looking at a fresh valentine sporting the words: "Good Dog, Happy Day."

"We want to connect people with resources. This is a friendly gesture, not hostile or accusatory. We're not trying to be judgmental. We're just saying dogs are social animals, and chaining makes them miserable and often aggressive."

"When I lived in Wisconsin," McGowan said, "I noticed a chained collie-mix that was always outdoors. I stopped and gave the dog food and water and made friends with the owner. Eventually, I found the dog a new home. I did the same for a cocker spaniel chained outside. Dogs aren't meant to live this way."

The Central Pennsylvania League of Humane Voters was formed in 2005, an offshoot of the decade-old National LHV. "We're making valentines for dogs whose owners don't treat them right," explained Kylie Blew, 8, of Landisville. "We're drawing pictures on the cards, so the dogs can see we care."

"You should think," added McGowan's daughter, Emily, 9. "If you were chained up, how would you feel?"
